SUMMARY

The DTI has launched an online Bulk Sales Registration service through its Integrated Registration Information System (IRegIS). The new service allows applicants to submit documentary requirements, process applications, and track the status of their registration electronically, without needing to transact in person.

The initiative forms part of the DTI's continuing digitalization of frontline services and supports the government's ease-of-doing-business agenda under Republic Act No. 11032, otherwise known as the Ease of Doing Business and Efficient Government Service Delivery Act of 2018.

The online platform is expected to make compliance more accessible and transparent for businesses undertaking transactions covered by bulk-sales requirements, particularly where a seller disposes of a substantial part of its inventory, equipment, or business assets outside the ordinary course of business. The availability of an online process may also help reduce delays associated with document submission, application follow-up, and registration monitoring.

Businesses can access the online Bulk Sales Registration service, along with other automated FTEB services, by visiting the official IRegIS portal at <https://iregis.dti.gov.ph/>

ACTIONABLE ADVICE

Businesses planning an acquisition of inventory, equipment, or operating assets should determine early whether the proposed transaction may be treated as a bulk sale and, if so, factor the applicable registration process into the transaction timeline. Sellers should ensure that required documents and supporting records are complete before filing. Buyers, lenders, and investors should include bulk-sales compliance in their legal due diligence and closing conditions, particularly where the transaction involves a transfer of substantially all business assets or inventory. Companies should also retain proof of filing, registration, and related disclosures as part of their transaction records to mitigate regulatory and creditor-related risks.
